SHORT CONTENTS OF THE ENCLOSED ISSUE OF OVERLEVEN DOOR WERELDRECHT = SURVIVAL BY WORLD LAW (in some sort of English)

If mankind had listened to world federalists, arms races and the danger of bigger wars would have been much better restrained.

As this was not done, I think that a worldwide armed conflict might be quite imminent. During years already I have feared it to be an illusion that after the so called end of the cold war such a conflict could no more break out. My fear is corroborated by prophecies of clairvoyants whose assertions in the past appeared to be confirmed by real events. This is explained e.g. in the following books (in German) :

- Armageddon, written by LeoDegard, edited by Kopp Verlag.
- Prophezeihungen über das Ende der Welt, (Is the end of the world as we know it imminent?) by Fabio Araujo, ed. by Kopp.

According to what is reported in those works, humanity will be hit not only by a third world war but also by natural catastrophes. Big fragments of an asteroid or of a comet core would collide with the earth two times. The second time the disaster would make an end to the hostilities, but only a minority of mankind would survive.

What to think about all this? Wars are linked to human volitions. Therefore, it sounds reasonable that humans can avoid them if they strongly want to. As to natural catastrophes, I don't believe that sensu stricto they can be considered "punishments of God". However, they may be linked to something like karma, which means that human volitions might attract or restrain them. Our behaviour, inner dispositions or prayers might influence what will happen.

It is known somehow that war resisters, particularly conscientious objectors, are being persecuted in many countries. Less known is that this is also the case as to world citizens/world federalists. Daniel Durand, president of the (international) Registry of World Citizens, reports about Urbain Kapoko, registered world citizen and correspondent in the so called Democratic Republic of Congo. The latter recently published a report about violations of human rights in the area of Kindu. Since that time death threads followed him. Finally, he fled to a hidden place in a neighbouring province.

This fellow world citizen is not alone in being persecuted. Daniel Durand reminds us some of the precedents :

-2004 : world citizen Aimé Ruzuba Bisimwa and seven of his collaborators were put into jail in Bukavu, accused of delivering their region to foreign forces.

-1984 : Adama Ben Traoré, our correspondent in Ouagadougou, was imprisoned as well because of his mundialist commitment.

-Beginning of the eighties : Muriel Saragoussi, correspondent in Brazil, some time after the assassination of Chico Mendès, saw herself exposed to death threads.

-? : Alain Noël Njiokem Nkwatchou, in Nkongsamba (Cameroun), was beaten for being a world citizen. He is still being threatened but courageously continues his work.

-? Previous to him, Peter Mbunta, correspondent in Douala (Cameroun) was arrested during a world citizens' meeting. He stayed four years in prison.

-? Yen Campos, correspondent in Chimbote (Perú), had to fly to a neighbour country, due to threads received after lectures about world citizenship.

-? Day Sattaji, correspondent in Karachi (Pakistan) has given no sign of life those last six years. What is going on?

-Our friends in Ivory Coast and Chad don't feel easy either.

-? Michel Dialundama, correspondent in Luanda, had created a world citizens' barrel, but bulldozers of the government destroyed it all. Threatened to be assassinated, Michel fled to a neighbouring country, whereas his collaborator Fernando Kinhani took refuge in France.

And there are other cases. The message of the world citizens bears hope, but at which price!

Contrary to what you sometimes hear, world citizens/world federalists have not become inactive everywhere. On the international scene activities are going on. In order to learn more about it, open websites like

The Registry of World Citizens essentially is not a members' organisation. It offers to anyone the possibility to declare himself/herself a world citizen who wants to be represented democratically on a worldwide scale (where survival problems are posed). Those who have themselves registered by us don't adhere to articles of association nor are they obliged to pay a contribution or to assist meetings.

Nevertheless there logically exists an organisation managing the registry which counts about a hundred persons worldwide. Normal general assemblies take place every two years. This year, on the 14th of May, a special one was held in Paris.

Albert Camus, the famous writer, one of the first of our registered world citizens, was born a hundred years ago. This was commemorated in several places, e.g. on the 14th of January in the Palais du Luxembourg in Paris, where the seat of the French senate is situated. The (international) Registry of World Citizens took part in this event. Speeches were held among others by Joël Labbé, senator and registered world citizen. He stressed that Camus had endeavoured his whole life for freedom and worldwide democracy.

The Institute for Mundialist Studies (= Institut d'études mondialistes) holds its 35th session in "Au Moulin de Bouckey" in Eben-Emael (Belgium). For more information, see the above mentioned data : open the website, write or phone.

On the 15th of May a symposium took place in Wavre (Belgium) about the planned treaties between the European Union and the United States. Daniel Durand, our president, took part in the exchanges.

Fifty years ago, in June of 1964, Belgium adopted a law for conscientious objectors. For those who had been illegal objectors and had endeavoured to obtain a legal status, to whom we had belonged during a few years, this was a moment of intimate joy. We hope the anniversary will be commemorated in appropriate ways.

Hitler pretended Poland had attacked Germany. Bush invaded Iraq because of non-existing weapons of mass destruction in that country. The same Bush, on the occasion of 9/11, declared his country and the NATO-allies to be at war. However, apparently also the tragic event of the said date is surrounded by lots of dubious assertions, not to say untruths. In all wars lies play an essential role...

We several times reported about the use of a whole of mind manipulating and health ruining radiation weapons. This time we just remind that credible information about this horror can be found by just searching a few names on the internet :

- Mojmir Babacek (philosopher, economist), researcher mind control technologies.
- Heiner Gehring (psychologist), idem.
- Colin Ross (psychiatrist), idem.
- John Hall (medical doctor) idem.
- Lynn Weed, Keep The Ethical Light Burning.
- Cheryl Welsh, Mindjustice.
- Barrie Trower (professor physics, previously working as a secret agent), researcher mind control technologies.

For the first time since 1973, when it was situated in Hove, the R.W. has got serious financial problems. Help us by transferring a contribution to : Register van Wereldburgers nr. IBAN BE40 0001 1499 0163. We will feel eternally grateful.
